Sheriff reports dead man found outdoors in Virginia City

GEOFF HAMILL
editor@madisoniannews.com

During the Twin Bridges Council meeting on March 13, Madison County Sheriff Roger Thompson reported a 30-year-old male was found dead outdoors in Virginia City, apparently killed by cold weather.

"We're also looking into the gentleman who froze to death in Virginia City a couple weeks back, when we had the real bitter cold nights," the sheriff told council. "In fact, it was the same weekend actually that the shooting happened, so it goes back farther than a couple weeks."

A shooting occurred in Ennis on Feb. 19.

The sheriff told council the deceased man was 30 years old, and his office is awaiting results from the state crime lab to confirm the cause of death.

The Madisonian contacted Thompson and requested a press release on the incident. The sheriff said a press release would be issued after the crime lab results are received.

Storage unit burglaries on the rise

editor@madisoniannews.com

During the Twin Bridges Council meeting on March 13, Sheriff Roger Thompson reported no serious law enforcement issues in Twin Bridges for the previous month, but said storage shed burglaries had occurred around the county.

"The bad news around the county is that our storage unit burglaries are starting to pick back up again," said Thompson. "We've been hit three times in about the last three-and-a-half weeks. Surrounding counties are getting the same thing again, storage unit burglaries are starting to happen again. Right now, we have no leads other than suspecting that the ones that we didn't get last time are back. Unfortunately, nobody's seen anything yet. They're picking locks that are really cheap, thin locks and seem to be avoiding the really heavy duty locks. This one down here at the edge of town also has been contacted, I believe. But it's kind of on the edge of the county and the edge of the town, so people can pick on it and they picked on it last time too. It's something that's coming around but it's not just this county, it seems. Bozeman and Gallatin County have had a lot of break-ins."

Councilmember Nolan Frandsen asked if recent burglaries have been limited to storage units, or if residential properties have been targeted, as well.

"The storage units are what we've got," said Thompson. "We really haven't had any, since probably last early fall, but that's really dropped. But that's when three or four of that group had been arrested. We know that those weren't the only ones. We know that there's about at least three others out there that we still lack and we just haven't been able to build a case enough on those. However, they seem to have not come back or they haven't been spotted here. Back at that time, because we had storage sheds being broken into, remote houses and remote garages were being burglarized at the same time. That has not come back yet."

Twin Bridges approves intent to raise water & sewer rates

editor@madisoniannews.com

TWIN BRIDGES -- Twin Bridges town council approved two resolutions during its March 13 meeting, stating the town's intent to raise water and sewer rates. The town is raising rates to balance its water and sewer budgets, pay off a sewer system revenue bond, and build up a reserve fund for future repairs and upgrades.

If approved by council

following a public hearing, the monthly base rate for a 3/4-inch water line will increase from $28.50 to $31 in July, with a 2 percent increase every year thereafter until 2023. With the final 2 percent increase in July 2023, the water rate for a 3/4-inch line will stand at $33.56.

The monthly base sewer rate for customers with a 3/4-inch water supply line will increase from $36.59 to $46.89 in July, with a 2 percent increase every year thereafter until 2023. With the final 2 percent increase in 2023, the base sewer rate for customers with a 3/4-inch water supply line will stand at $50.76.

"This is basically just keeping up with the costs of actually providing the service, because we waited too long to do it, correct?" asked councilmember Joe Willauer.

"Exactly," replied councilmember Matt Greemore.

Council voted 4-0 to approve resolutions of intent to raise the water and sewer rates. Councilmember David Banks was not present. A public hearing on the rate increases will be held on April 10 at 6:45 p.m. at town hall.

Council approved a resolution to request gas tax funds from the state Bridge and Road Safety Accountability Account to be applied to the Sixth Avenue stormwater and sidewalk improvement project.

"We've got two different gas taxes, the old gas tax and this newer one," said mayor Tom Hyndman. "Next year will be quite a bit more than this year. Last year, we got $4,000. It should be about triple next year."

Council voted 3-0, with Willauer abstaining, to deny a request by Madison County commissioners to split the cost of an electricity bill overage, caused by a break in the water line to the county fairgrounds last summer. The approximately $800 in electrical use was due to extra pumping to fill water tanks drained by the broken line.

"I don't think people in town should pay for that," said Frandsen.

"I would agree," said

councilmember Annette McLean.

"All they were billed for was the overage," said Greemore.

In February, council approved splitting the cost of the lost water, which gave the county a discount of approximately $4,100.

Hyndman read a report from town maintenance supervisor Sam Novich, stating a wastewater pump shaft had broken for the second time.

Insurance will not cover the cost of repair or replacement and the pump is out of warranty. The cost of repair is approximately $3,000, but a repair would not be warranted. The cost of replacement is approximately $4,500, and a new pump would carry a 3-year warranty. Council concurred to ask Novich to research various suppliers to locate a new pump.

During the mayor's report, Hyndman reminded council the town is hosting a Montana League of Cities and Towns training event on May 21. The mayor said The Wagon Wheel was chosen as a site for the all-day event, and other businesses would have the opportunity to host events in the future.

The mayor reported several moose had been spotted in town, and he contacted a game warden to report the issue.

Hyndman informed Sheriff Roger Thompson that he had noticed several people speeding driving north into town, especially during the morning. Thompson said a new deputy would be completing training soon and would be able to help with speed enforcement.

Town attorney Lori Harshbarger reported she is still waiting for a requested attorney general opinion regarding the mayor's authority with respect to the library. Harshbarger submitted the request last fall.

In other business:

- Town clerk Kristi Humphrey reminded council that a meeting with a prospective bond counsel is scheduled for March 22 at 3 p.m.

- The mayor and council members will attend the school board meeting on March 20 to discuss cost sharing for the Sixth Avenue stormwater and sidewalk project.

- Council voted 4-0 to accept the Madison County Pre-disaster Mitigation Plan.

On Sat., March 17, the Elling House Arts & Humanities Center in Virginia City will host its third Chautauqua of 2018. The EHACH hosts a winter series of Chautauquas in January, February, March and April. The monthly event begins with a potluck dinner at 6:30 p.m. and performances start at 7:30 p.m.

ended up with an intake depth of about 400 feet," said Stump.

"When they started pumping, it was pumping about 90 gpm.

It declined somewhat to about 70 gpm.... Scott was a little disappointed. He thought from our earlier drilling that we had a really high producing well. Our water right for the deep aquifer is around 550 gpm. He still has no questions that we were going to get that kind of water."

Stump said the town hopes to have the well and a distribution pipeline completed by August.

The mayor contacted the town's on-call engineer, Great West

Engineering, to confirm that the pipeline could be completed in that time frame.

"I did contact Great West,

since they are our on-call have the capability of supporting a fast-track schedule," said

Stump. "We are trying, maybe foolishly trying, to get this

August, trying to get it done by August. In order to do that, we need a pipeline. So, I contacted

Great West to see if they have the ability to support a fast-track project that would be done in August. They said they could."

The mayor expressed gratitude to Morris Land

Company and Ranch Resources for allowing the town to use land for the well project.

Councilmember resigns

Councilmember Paul Kramer announced his resignation from council. Kramer said he expended a lot of energy during town water and sewer upgrade projects in the past year, and needed to focus on his job. "My priority is my job and I want to get some things taken care of there," he said. "It's just time for me to back away right now. The mayor is good, you three guys are great, Ginger's (town clerk Ginger Galiger) doing a great job."

Stump told Kramer he was sorry to hear of the resignation, but he understood Kramer's reasons. Kramer has served on Sheridan Council for more than 10 years.

In other business, town council:

- Adopted the Madison County Pre-disaster Mitigation Plan.

- Approved an Acre 84 tract plat.

- Elected Mike Walter council president.

- Approved a resolution allowing the town to use water project loan proceeds to reimburse itself for payments made.

Ennis School music updates

SUBMITTED BY ENNIS SCHOOL MUSIC DEPARTMENT

February 2018 has been an eventful month for our band and choir students. In February, our pep band played at several home varsity basketball games and our junior high and high school band and choir students began preparing for the District Music Festival and our Spring Performances. Senior band member Kelsie Frey auditioned at MSU-Bozeman for music scholarships and our junior high band students participated in the Southwest Montana Junior High Band Festival in Twin Bridges.

Around 15 of our 6th, 7th and 8th grade band students participated in the Junior High Band festival in Twin Bridges on Feb. 13.

Our Junior High and High School Spring Concert is "Space: The Final Frontier" and will feature space-themed music and will begin at 7 p.m. on May 17. The concert will be at the Madison Theater in downtown Ennis.

The elementary and junior high choir festival will be in Bozeman on Monday, April 9. We are only allowed to take our best 12 elementary singers and our best 12 junior high students. Students who attend will be notified and given music, a parent information note, and permission slip by March 19.

Band and choir homework slips go home with students every Friday that school is in session. These homework slips are due the following Friday and are worth 45 points each week. Students need to obtain a new homework slip every Friday and arrange to turn in the completed slip by the following Friday. Parents/guardians are expected to sign off on this work to indicate that it has been completed. If necessary, students may arrange a time with Mr. Scruggs to come in and complete the assignment in the high school music room after or before school. Please watch for these to regularly show up at home.

We are working on getting SmartMusic accounts for each band and choir student at our school. This is very exciting since it would eliminate the need for paper homework slips and students with access to a computer could complete and submit band and choir assignments online. SmartMusic is an amazing practice tool and a huge asset to students who use it. As soon as we have SmartMusic accounts set up and working you will receive a note from school and an email from Mr. Scruggs with all of the information needed to set up and use SmartMusic at home. SmartMusic is available for iPads and tablets as well as computers.

Spring concerts

This year our junior high and high school students will be performing space-themed music at the Madison Theater on May 17 for our Spring Concert. We plan to also feature a slide show of amazing pictures from outer space while we perform.

Our K-6th grade music program will be on May 18 and you won't want to miss our elementary showcase of all the talent we have in our elementary school!

District Music Festival

Our high school band and choir students should be hard at work on solos and ensembles and must have their selections finalized with Mr. Scruggs by March 14th. We will be performing two of our concert selections at the festival and will also be sight reading/sight singing one selection while there. Students performing solos or ensembles should find a minimum of five times to come get coaching from Mr. Scruggs or Mrs. Gordon prior to Spring Break.

Madison County election filings

news@madisoniannews.com

Election season is fast approaching, as filings for county positions have officially closed. According to the Montana Secretary of State's website, candidate filing for both legislative and non-legislative positions also closed on March 12.

Madison County Clerk and Recorder and Election Administrator Kathleen Mumme said she recommended to Madison County Commissioners on March 20 to not place local races on the primary ballot as all incumbents are running unopposed, except for Commission District 2. "Since we are a non-partisan county, we can send this race to the general election, too," Mumme said. "All the local county offices will not be voted on until the November primary."

County positions up for reelection and filings are as follows:

Commission District 3, Ennis-Big Sky area – Jim Hart, incumbent, running unopposed.
Commission District 2, Twin Bridges-Harrison area – Ron Nye, incumbent; Randy Lower Clerk of court – Karen Miller, incumbent
Clerk and Recorder – Kathleen Mumme, incumbent County Attorney – Chris Christensen, incumbent Justice of the Peace – Suzanne

Nellen, incumbent
Treasurer – Shelly Burke, incumbent
Sheriff/Coroner – Roger Thompson, incumbent

Legislative, non-legislative filings

According to the Montana Secretary of State's website, three candidates have filed to represent House District 71 in the Montana House of Representatives. As of the 5 p.m. March 12 deadline, incumbent Ray Shaw, R-Sheridan, filed to continue his term. Running against Shaw is Jay Frederick, D-Ennis, and Michael White, L-Ennis.

Running for District Court judge of the 5th Judicial District Court is incumbent Luke Berger, who was appointed for the position by Gov. Bullock to fill out previous District Court Judge Loren Tucker's two-year term. The Fifth Judicial District encompasses Beaverhead, Jefferson and Madison counties and Berger is running, unopposed, for a six-year term.

School board trustees

According to Sheridan Schools District Clerk Rebecca Larsen, candidates have until March 29 to file for a trustee position if they wish to be on the May ballot. Write-in candidates have until April 5 to file.

Sheridan School Board will not run general fund levy

news@madisoniannews.com

The Sheridan School Board met on March 13 for their regular monthly meeting and discussed the upcoming election. According to District Clerk Rebecca Larsen, the board decided not to run a general fund levy. However, the board is looking to run a continued building reserve levy for both the high school and elementary school, and a technology levy.

"The board decided not to run a general fund levy, but we do have a building reserve levy of $20,000 a year for five years, both for the high school and elementary buildings," said Larsen.

According to Larsen, these levies are already in place and would be renewal, meaning a taxpayer amount would not change. Larsen said the board has not yet determined their ballot language but estimated a building reserve levy for the high school would be approximately 3.38 mils. "The two building reserve levies are just replacing the current ones and there would not be an increase on taxes," she said.

The board also intend to impose a technology fund levy at $25,000 for 10 years, approximately 7.14 mils. "We estimated the tech levy will increase taxes by $9.48 per year," said Larsen.

Sheridan Superintendent Mike Wetherbee said the cost of doing business in the technology industry has risen dramatically. "The tech levy has been a perpetual levy, meaning it wasn't previously voted on," said Wetherbee. "The cost of doing the tech business has risen dramatically over the last five years and our ability to keep it within what we've been doing has been costing us more and more. Just to keep up with our already aggressive approach to keep technology in front of the kids, we have to go outside of the box to find grants and lots of public donations. Our levy money is just what we keep for the general part of the system."

For example, Wetherbee said the school needs to get new computers in their computer lab every three to five years, just to keep up on things as simple as testing, which is a $10,000 bill in itself.

"I think this is going to be a trend that you'll see with schools," said Wetherbee. "We've had these perpetual levies and they've been good at keeping us where we need to be, but it's getting more expensive than where our levies are, and we want to keep some, if not all, out of the general fund."

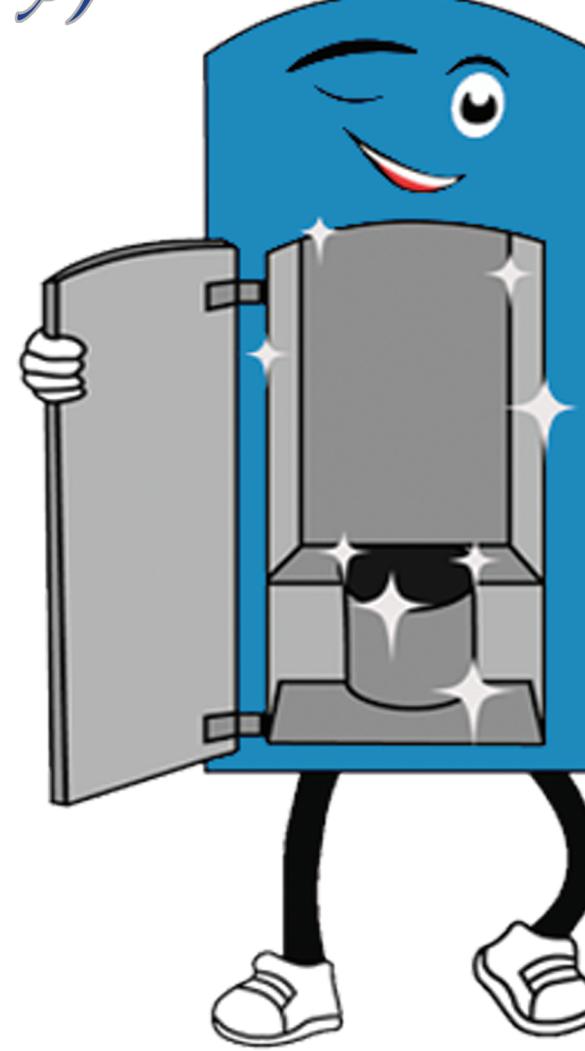

Other business

The board is still in talks with an architect about updating the school's track facility and is preparing to present their findings to the public. "We're committed to putting a piece together for the public – whether that makes it to a levy or not, I'm not sure," said Wetherbee.

During their March 13 meeting, the board unanimously approved to renew Elementary Principal Rod Stout's contract for another school year.

OBITUARIES

Amy Wilma Orser Swoboda

July 1, 1923 - Feb. 8, 2018

Amy Wilma Orser Swoboda was born on July 1, 1923 at her grandparents' Peaceful Heart Ranch at the base of the Pryor Mountains, five miles from Pryor. She was the daughter of Artie Orser, world-champion bronc rider, and Esther Burger Orser. She died of cardiac arrest on Feb. 8, 2018, within just a few miles of where she was born. She was interred at the Joliet Cemetery surrounded by her family members.

Amy was a lifetime member of Sons and Daughters of the Montana Pioneers. She was a direct descendant of Otis Crocker Whitney, one of the original homesteaders in the Madison Valley. The Whitney homestead still stands near Whitney Point near Ennis, Montana. She lived her life with a fierce love of Montana and pride in her pioneer background.

Amy's early years were spent in and around the Pryor Mountains, and she forever loved the land beneath the Pryor Mountains. She loved the prairie grasses, flowers, birds and meadows, and she forever felt at home hearing the song of the red-winged blackbird or meadowlark. She was a real cowgirl, and she loved to ride horses. Her life on the ranch gave her an education far beyond what could be provided in the usual schoolroom.

She attended her first two years of school at the Roosevelt School in Billings, following her mother's divorce and remarriage. Amy was only seven when her mother died, however, and after a tumultuous but brief time of custody changes, she returned to the ranch where she was born, and she was raised thereafter by her grandparents, Elmer and Maria "Rye" Whitney Burger. During the school years, she lived with her aunt Mabelle and uncle Dale Petit while attending the Upper Pryor School. She often shared her memories of the years she spent in this small one-room schoolhouse, and the various enthusiastic and motivated business, Rudy got an opportunity to work for Morrison Knutson in Boise, Idaho. They both moved to Barranquilla, Columbia for 18 months, where Rudy worked on the Cerrejón Mine Project while with Morrison Knutson. They enjoyed traveling throughout South America during this adventure, and Amy made many friends among those she met on this trip.

Amy perfected the art of young teachers who educated their small group of students in many grades. During harsh winters, she rode her horse two miles to and from school. In the fall of her eighth grade, she moved to Billings with her aunt and uncle, and she graduated from the first graduating class at Billings Senior High in 1941. Following graduation, as she had done every summer of her youth, she returned to her family ranch to assist her grandmother in running the ranch. Since her grandfather had died, it was very challenging for two women to run the ranch during the war, when it was impossible to hire help, and, in 1942, they sold the ranch and moved back to Billings.

In February of 1944, she traveled across the United States by train and bus and she married her high school sweetheart, Rudy Joe Swoboda, in New Bern, North Carolina, where Rudy was stationed at the Cherry Point Naval Air Station.

After Rudy was deployed to the South Pacific as a Marine pilot, Amy returned to Billings and lived with her grandmother while working at the Midland National Bank. Upon Rudy's return to the United States, Amy moved to California to be with him until the end of the war. After the war, they moved to Bozeman, Montana, where Rudy attended Montana State College. Amy attended college classes and worked part time.

After Rudy was deployed to the South Pacific as a Marine pilot, Amy returned to Billings where Rudy first worked for and then owned and operated Montana Steel and Supply. After his sale of that business, Rudy got an opportunity to work for Morrison Knutson in Boise, Idaho. They both moved to Barranquilla, Columbia for 18 months, where Rudy worked on the Cerrejón Mine Project while with Morrison Knutson. They enjoyed traveling throughout South America during this adventure, and Amy made many friends among those she met on this trip.

Amy and her children are forever grateful for those who visited her during her years of widowhood. The First Baptist Church community continued supportive visits.

Christi Timmons made Amy feel beautiful, even in her last journey. Amy's cousin David Orser and his wife Ossie Abrams were the solid rocks of support for her, and Amy's family will never forget their service. Profound thanks also go to the caring support staff at Westpark Village who enriched Amy's final years. Amy's loving family plans a celebration of Amy's life on her 95th birthday, July 1, 2018, at noon, at chief Plenty Coups State Park in Pryor, Montana. We plan to celebrate the many good things she left us all.

Amy is survived by her half-sister, Muriel Anderson of West Jordan Utah; her daughter Patti and her husband Ray Hunter, who live in Santa Barbara, California; her granddaughter Whitney and her husband Miles Clarke of Lyle, Washington; and her great grandson, Theodore Rudy James Clarke. She is also survived by her son Jaye and his wife Metta Ravenheart of Ennis, Montana; her grandson A.J. Swoboda and his wife Quinn of Portland, Oregon; and her great grandson Elliott; her step grandchildren Matt, wife Georgia and daughter Isabel, Sara and Gen of New Mexico.

Ruth Hepner

Aug. 21, 1930 - March 15, 2018

Ruth Hepner, age 87, formerly of Ennis, died March 15, 2018 at Dillon, Montana.

Ruth was born August 21, 1930 at Wallace, Idaho to Harold and Margaret Hepner. She attended schools in South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, graduating from Libby High School, one year at the University of Montana of 1948-1949, received B.S. in nursing from University of Maryland in 1962. She was active in nursing in Baltimore until 1979 when she returned to Montana to be with her mother, Margaret Daems, in Varney, taking care of her in terminal illness at home. Prior to nursing, Ruth had done many kinds of work in Montana, Washington, Illinois, and Maryland.

Ruth was a member of Trinity Episcopal Church at Jeffers. Her hobbies included cooking, reading and music.

Cremation has taken place, no services will take place, and her ashes will be interred at a later date in the Daems Lot in the Hillside Cemetery at Virginia City, Montana.

K&L Mortuaries & Crematory of Ennis is assisting with arrangements.

Spring sports preview: what to expect from Madison County's track and golf athletes

news@madisoniannews.com

Student athletes are already back in action and prepping for spring sports. Track and field and golf athletes started practicing last week and are looking forward to successful seasons. Here's a preview of what to expect this season on either the track, field or course!

Twin Bridges

With 31 athletes out, the Falcon track and field team is hoping for another season of success. The Falcons will head to Belgrade on April 7 for their first meet and have 17 boys and 14 girls participating. "I'm excited about every meet," Reynolds said. "To me, it is exciting to see the athletes better themselves and become more competitive from meet to meet."

Most coaches and athletes like that track and field is both a team and individual sport. Reynolds is no different. "Not only do I like the competition between athletes, I like the competition they have with themselves; the athlete vs. a personal best. I enjoy seeing the result of hard work."

Returning this season are state participants Kailee Oliverson, Megan Bausch, Michaela Madden and Clancy Phillips for the girls' and Steve Smathers for the boys. Oliverson and Bausch placed in the sprinting events at the 2017 state meet – Oliverson finished first in both the 100 and 300-meter hurdles, Bausch took third in the 400-meter dash. Madden and Phillips contributed to the Lady Falcon success in the relays, and Madden also took seventh last season in long jump. She recently signed a letter of intent with Lewis and Clark State to run track. Smathers took 10th in javelin last season.

"Our main goal this season is the same as always: we want to avoid injuries, have fun while working hard and better ourselves at every meet," said Reynolds.

Reynolds is once again assisted this season by Nancy Bell.

Ennis – track and field

The Mustangs have 30 athletes out for the season and will see their first meet on March 29 in Columbus. As for season goals, head coach Wendy McKitrick said the team's main hope is to return to state. "It's a great place to shoot for!" McKitrick said of sending athletes back to the state meet.

Returning for the Mustangs this season are several defending state champs including Jourdain Klein in the triple jump and high jump, Tanner and Corbin Wood and Dillon Williams in the relays. C. Wood took second place in both the 100 and 200 meter dash and the brothers, along with Williams, took first in the 4x100 relay and fourth in the 4x400 relay.

Goals for the team, according to McKitrick are simple: do their best and have fun. "All our kids set personal goals to reach during the year," she said. "This culminates into a big goal of placing or winning state."

McKitrick said to expect the see the Mustangs at their best – a fun, fast paced crew with lots of kids in lots of different activities. "Will make for some fun watching this year at our track meets!"

Ennis – golf

The Mustangs have 12 golfers out for the season; seven boys and five girls. Head coach Chris McCown and assistant coach Nick Burgess are back the helm and excited with the new, underclassmen golfers they have this season.

"A lot of younger kids, freshman and sophomores, who are out this year, which provides a lot of opportunity for growth and learning about the game," said McCown.

The team is also returning some experienced Mustang golfers whom McCown said are already showing definite improvements from previous seasons, while also bearing down for the windy and rainy season.

The first meet for the Mustang golf team, Madison County's only high school golf team, is on April 5, in Helena. The state meet is scheduled for May 14-16 at Fairmont Hot Springs, which McCown and his team are hoping to attend. But for now, mastering the basics is the team's biggest goal.

"Goals for this year is to swing easy, keep our heads down and learn about the game and the many rules," McCown said.

Harrison

Head coach Kaysha Young and assistant and throws coach, Heather Tyler, are ready for another Wildcat track season. With 12 athletes out, seven boys and five girls, Young is looking forward to the season and their first meet, April 7 in Belgrade.

Finding meets has been tough for small schools all over the state and Harrison is in the same boat. However, the Wildcats along with Granite High School, are excited to once again host the John Cheek Top 8 meet in Anaconda. "We are thankful to our athletic director for taking on the responsibility to help pull off this meet," she said.

Returning for the Wildcats are seniors Derik DeFrance and Lane Buus; DeFrance placed in the 1600 meter run at the state meet last season and Buus attended as a long jumper. Junior Layne Hommer, who went to the state meet for shot and disc in 2017, is also returning to the roster. "We're excited to see how these boys have improved over the past year as they've hit the weight room and continued to mature as competitive athletes," said Young.

Joining the Wildcat track team is an eager group of underclassmen, including five freshmen. "We are excited to work with these athletes and watch their improvement throughout the year," said Young. "Aleena Bacon was becoming a standout 800 runner in junior high last year, and Luke Cima was beginning to hit his stride in the 400 and high jump - we expect these athletes to be great contenders over the next four years. We are excited to have five girls this season and look forward to running a relay for the first time in many years."

Goals for the Wildcats are to remain injury free and refine techniques. Young said she is excited to watch the team progress and improve and hopes for sunshine and no wind this track season. "You should expect our 12 Wildcat athletes to learn and grow every week, seeing improvement and happy smiles from them at every meet. We've been blessed by an extraordinary group of athletes that make every practice enjoyable, they are always willing to work hard no matter how much mud or rain they have to suffer through!"

Sheridan

Sheridan Athletic Director Ed Burke said the Panthers have 12 athletes out; nine boys and three girls, and their first meet is April 7 in Belgrade. "Everything builds toward district and there are a lot of distractions during track season and kids miss meets for many different reasons, but everyone is ready to go com district time, which is May 12," said Burke of which meet he is most excited for.

Returning to the Panther roster this season is senior Riain Deavel, who qualified for the 2017 state meet in both the mile and the two-mile. Junior Moxon Lee made it to divisionals last year as a pole vaulter and hopes to make a run for the state meet this season. Also representing the boys team is Luke Dvorak, another talented distance runner who made the top 15 at the state cross country meet this school year. For the field events, Burke said senior Zane Bowey has a good shot in both the shot put and discus. "Others are less experienced, but it should be a good year," Burke said.

On the girls' side, Tia Hill barely missed a trip to state last season in the 800-meter run, and Burke said he thinks she's ready for a trip to state this season.

"While our numbers are low, those kids that are out are kids who want to be here," Burke said of team goals. "The goal every year for every athlete is to simply show improvement from beginning of the season to the end."

Streambank restoration in full swing with willow harvest

The Madison Conservation District, along with a multitude of volunteers and help from the Montana Conservation Corps have harvested more than 4,000 willows to be used toward the Jack Creek restoration project. (C. Avey photo)

news@madisonianews.com

The Madison Conservation District has been working on a restoration project along Jack Creek for four years. After planning began in 2014, the two-phase project is seeing its first milestone in the near-completion of phase one. "Seeing the project come to fruition is really gratifying," said Sunni Heikes-Knapton, watershed coordinator for the MCD.

The restoration project on Jack Creek is to aid in the rebuilding of streambanks, a process known as bioengineering. Bioengineering techniques help to stabilize banks by temporarily holding soil together until the plants biological process kicks in – the result is a densely vegetated bank held together by a network of roots. In order to achieve this, the MCD and volunteers have been harvesting dormant willows to be used along the Jack Creek stream bank. So far, more than 4,000 willows, of the needed 12,000, have been harvested.

"A project of this size requires a lot of support and resources, so spreading it out makes completion realistic," said Heikes-Knapton. "We rely on volunteer and partner labor, and two phases makes it more sensible to get their involvement. Getting the first phase done is also excellent at showing momentum and raising the remaining funds for the work."

On March 15 and 16, volunteers, MCD members and several Montana Conservation Corps crews braved the ever-changing Montana weather for two field days collecting willows, which will later be distributed along the streambank. "Willows are the stitches that bind, in this case," joked Heikes-Knapton as she prepped volunteers for the field days. Crews spent the majority of the field days along North Meadow Creek collecting and transporting willows.

The Jack Creek restoration is just one of many projects the MCD and partners are working on – they're helping finish the final work for a project on Moore's Creek, and have plans to involve the Madison Stream Team with monitoring results from restoration projects like the Jack Creek project.

While projects like stream restoration are complex and require a lot of participation, the reward of a healthy streambank is a benefit to all. "Our small streams play a pivotal role in our valley," said Heikes-Knapton. "They provide benefits in their immediate areas, and they also have a big influence on what flows into the river. When these smaller streams are healthy, we see lower water temperatures, less sediment contributions, and improved habitat values – all of which help the stream and the river. Jack Creek is an important spawning area, so these projects provide long term support for trout populations too. We have also seen these projects improve the stream corridor while also making it easier for land and livestock managers, which is good for the water and the people."

For more information on the Jack Creek stream restoration project, or others like it, or how to get involved, visit the Madison Conservation District's website, www.madisoncd.net, or call 682-7289. And be sure to check out the interactive Madison Watershed StoryMap for an overview of the watershed project.

REAL ESTATE TIPS

→ RENTING OUT YOUR VACATION HOME - Many people who dream of owning a vacation home in Montana also dream of having that property generate income for them. They may only plan to use a property for a few weeks or months in the summer, so it could make sense to let others enjoy your cabin and help pay for your dream.

Here are some basic steps to take to get you started down the rental road...

Determine how much to charge in rent - Check rental properties in the area to see how your property compares and what others are charging. Rates seem to depend upon how many bathrooms and # of bodies you can sleep. Check on VRBO, Airbnb and HomeAway. Local Bozeman companies, such as: <http://www.mountainhome.com/> and <https://www.montanavacation.com> provide more hands-on service plus good exposure. Their representatives will visit your property and give you recommendations on pricing and how to make your property more attractive to renters. In addition, they will manage the properties and handle rent, accounting, cleaning and maintenance. There are also a few local property management services, such as Madison Management, <http://madisonmanagement.com/> who have even more local resources. Decide whether to manage your property yourself or hire help - It may be tempting to manage your property yourself when you consider the rates charged for property management. But that might be a small price to pay for avoiding headaches with your rental. There are other local property managers who will handle the management but do not have the internet exposure to attract renters. Provide maintenance when needed - Vacation renters expect immediate response to problems, no matter how small. Examples would be plumbing, power outages, lack of heat, roof leaks, access to rental unit, supplies, etc. A good property manager has local relationships with service providers who will react to problems in a timely manner. Absentee owners may not have access to all the necessary resources, resulting in unhappy renters. Pick the right property manager - Picking a property management company isn't just about finding one with the lowest fees. Fees are important, but don't let that be the sole deciding factor. Good internet exposure, responsiveness, dependability, reputation and resources are all important considerations. And referrals and recommendations from other property owners in the area are very helpful in making your selection.

to use it - Schedule your vacation usage and make sure to inform the property manager. Also review IRS rules regarding personal use, as the "over 14 days" and "10% of days rented" rules may apply. Review details at: <https://www.irs.gov/newsroom/plan-ahead-for-tax-time-when-renting-out-residential-or-vacation-property>. Keep good records of maintenance costs - many costs may be written off against income, however, rental expenses cannot be more than the rent received. Block out the times you want

HEALTH & WELLNESS

5 Ways to Reduce Everyday Stress

(StatePoint) Deadlines, responsibilities, bills -- there are so many causes of stress in our lives. Unfortunately, stress can take a negative toll on one's health and wellness, particularly if it goes unaddressed for too long. Indeed, common effects of stress include headaches, stomach upset, anxiety, sleep problems and more, according to the Mayo Clinic.

This April, which is Stress Awareness Month, consider these strategies for relieving stress.

- Aromatherapy: Scent your home and workspace with stress-relieving scents like lavender, rosemary and peppermint. Whether you use candles, oils or fresh herbs, this is an easy way to immediately reduce feelings of stress.

- Get outdoors: Both exercise and nature can have stress-relieving properties. Combine the two with hiking, biking, and water-based sports. Support your adventures with water-resistant wearable tech, like the WSD-F20 ProTrek Smart Outdoor Watch, which features functions like full color maps and GPS, app functionality to track progress, as well as sensor technology, allowing you to comfortably get off the beaten path and better appreciate your surroundings.

- Meditate: Many experts agree on the benefits of meditation, from increased positive emotions to the relief of stress and anxiety. And these days, meditation is more accessible than ever, as employers offer mindfulness programs in the workplace, mobile apps in guided meditation abound, and communities and fitness clubs add practices like tai chi and yoga to their rosters.

- Enjoy music: Music can be an extremely powerful outlet for stress relief, particularly when you're getting creative and making it yourself. Have the means at home to play a variety of beautiful music so that you can de-stress any time you need.

To faithfully reproduce the sounds of acoustic instruments like guitars, drums, basses, brass, wind instruments, string ensembles and more, you don't need an entire music studio full of separate instruments. The upgraded technology and sound quality found in digital pianos like Casio's CT-X700, which includes the new AiX SoundSource, reproduces subtle nuances and gestures specific to each sound.

- Keep a journal: Keeping a journal can be a good way of putting things in perspective and thinking through the short- and long-term problems and challenges that are causing you stress. Plus, the ritual aspect of what could be made into a daily habit, may have a calming effect on the body and mind.

This Stress Awareness Month and beyond, considering adopting stress-reducing hobbies and habits for a healthier body and mind.

You Need Magnesium for Your Vitamin D to Work

SUBMITTED BY DR. ANN KULZE

Low levels of vitamin D are amongst the most common and concerning of all vitamin deficiencies reported in the US, affecting 50-70 percent of adults and 30-50 percent of youth. Sadly, low levels of vitamin D have been tied to a litany of adverse health outcomes including CV disease, cancer, metabolic dysfunction, Type 2 diabetes, and depression, among many others. According to a recent review, this public health crisis is being compounded by yet another rampant nutrient deficiency-magnesium. Magnesium is required for the conversion of inactive vitamin D to its biologically active form, 1,25 dihydroxy vitamin D. Unfortunately, because of widespread industrial agriculture and the highly-processed nature of the standard American diet, up to half of all Americans are not getting adequate levels of magnesium from the foods they eat.

The take home message? Be sure to get optimal levels of magnesium in your diet to safeguard against the perils of vitamin D deficiency. If your magnesium levels are low, you will not have optimal levels of the active form of vitamin D in your body, no matter how much vitamin D supplements you take or get from the sun.

The mineral magnesium is involved in over 300 critical biochemical reactions in the human body, including converting vitamin D into its active form. Unfortunately, low dietary intakes of this mighty mineral are rampant. Limiting processed, industrial foods and replacing them with whole, real foods direct from Mother Earth is a wonderful start. Additionally, make note of the foods that offer the highest concentrations of this key nutrient:

Almonds
Bananas
Beans
Broccoli
Brown rice
Oatmeal and other whole grains
Cashews and other nuts
Egg yolks
Fish oil
Flaxseed
All green vegetables
Milk
Mushrooms
Pumpkin seeds
Sesame seeds
Soybeans
Sunflower seeds
Sweet corn
Tofu

STRAW BALE GARDENING

ADOPTED FROM NIKKI BAILEY, MSU EXTENSION AGENT

Short On Gardening Space or Good Soil? With a few weeks of preparation, straw bale gardening can be a great compromise to traditional gardening. Not only can this be very cost-effective, but it also allows you to garden anywhere.

Below are some tips and tricks from Nikki Bailey, MSU Extension Agent in Carbon County (Spring 2018 Lives & Landscapes). Start planning now to get your garden in top shape this summer!

BALES

Be sure to use only wheat or barley straw bales that are free of residual herbicide. Often, the straw comes from fields that have been sprayed. Ensure there is no residual by purchasing organic straw, or confirming bales are residue free. Start by arranging bales with baling twine parallel to the ground in a location that gets full sun.

FIRST WEEK: Watering

Start the decomposition process by soaking bales thoroughly with water, making sure water is reaching the inside of the bale and not rolling off the top.

SECOND WEEK: Fertilizing

After a week of regular watering, sprinkle one cup of high nitrogen fertilizer such as ammonium sulfate over the top of each bale and cover with a small amount of topsoil. Slowly water fertilizer and soil, allowing microbes to soak into the bale. Repeat this over the next three days to speed the decomposition process. On day four, reduce the rate of fertilizer to one-half cup per bale and continue to fertilize and water for three more days.

THIRD-SIXTH WEEK: Water and Temperature monitoring

Continue to water each day and monitor the temperature. The temperature will rise and then begin to fall as the bale decomposes from the inside out (this may take several weeks).

PLANTING:

Once the bale is below 100°F it is ready to plant. Plant up to five plants per bale depending on mature plant size and recommended planting distances. Spread a layer of topsoil over the top of the bale and insert each plant into the bale, filling around each with topsoil.

Straw bale gardens have a high infiltration rate—consistent watering prevents the plants from drying out. Drip systems and soaker hoses work best. Monitor plants for nutrient deficiencies and add fertilizer as needed throughout the growing season. Straw bale gardens are great conversation starters and perfect for those who are unable to kneel!

For more information on straw bale gardening, see the Washington State University Extension fact sheet <http://cru.cahe.wsu.edu/CEPublications/FS109E/FS109E.pdf>

Flyover Poem

By Nan Moore

February 24, 1993

I stared at the snow covered mountains below through my frost glazed airplane window. How deceiving are realities! I sit here in warmth and comfort in this self contained vehicle in the sky, only slightly aware that the true temperature of this altitude is incompatible with comfort, health, and probably life itself. There's something to be said for trust. There's something to be said for risk.

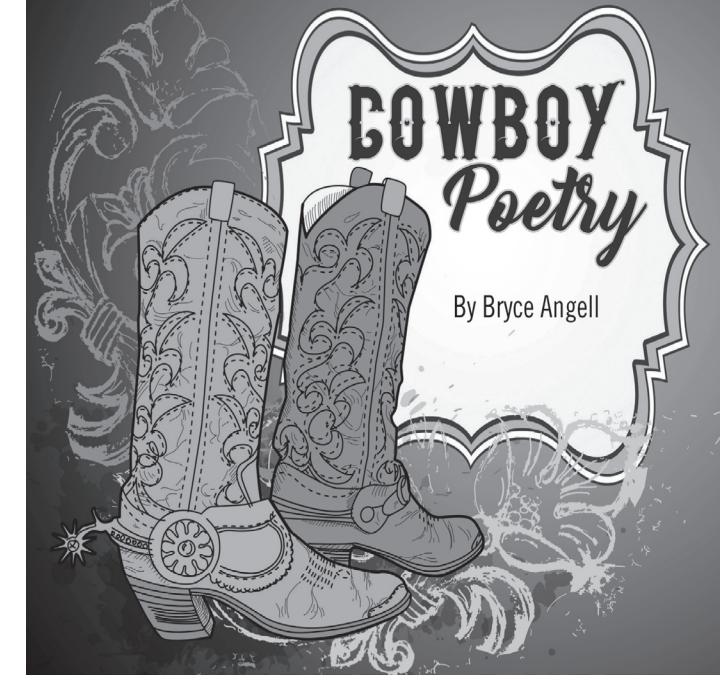

The temperature outside is evidenced by the scene far beneath me ... a frozen tundra of snow and ice; snow so deep in places that it is difficult to discern the definition of mountain. There are trees, barely visible from the air, pushing up from the snow in self identity. There are mountains only dusted with snow, interspersed with glimpses of dark, rich, fertile soil. There is frozen water within earth boundaries as lakes, rivers, and streams. Covering it all, as if in a blanket of security, are softly layered clouds of many hues. In some places, the mountains jut up tall enough to grab a cloud, pulling it down to rest upon its peak. In other places, the clouds themselves reach down to join with the frozen water, making it difficult to see where one ends and turns into the other.

The noise of the manmade airplane engine gives way to the imagined sound of silence below me. I wonder? Is this what God sees? The creation of God so lovingly nurtured by Nature. The beauty, the power, the OBVIOUS ORDER, the gentle tranquility... rises up to join with my spirit. Although my body is willingly trapped inside the plane, my soul is free to partake in joint communion with these gifts of God and Nature.

My spirit sees what my eyes cannot ... the aliveness of the world below me - deer and elk and bear - foraging for food, delighting in the winter snow; fish in all varieties, thriving beneath the frozen lakes and streams; seeds and plants buried beneath the black soil, just waiting their chance to pierce the topsoil and bloom.

Provided by God, nurtured by Nature; gratefully witnessed by me.

Each cowboy made a dash behind a cactus or a tree. I hope they brought some tissue 'cuz I needed mine for me.

We made the preparations and each cowboy had his chore. But the building of a privy sure was what we needed more.

So, a cowboy dug a hole and then he cobble up a seat. He wrapped a tarp around it and we called it our new Suite.

Now it sure ain't rocket science how we sleep the whole night long. But the minute you see sunshine that old feeling comes on strong.

I hurried down to our new Suite. But there a line ensued. One cowboy yelled, "Back to the rear!" And said it kinda crude.

The times goes by so slowly when you're waiting for the throne. So, we entertained ourselves by listening to our bellies groan.

Thank heaven for one cowboy. He's the builder of the bunch. He said, "I've done some thinking and for dang sure got a hunch."

We cowboys aren't the brightest, but we all can count to two. Now we call our Suite, "Two-Holer." 'Cuz there's room for me and you.

THE SUITE

We loaded up the horses, then we headed for Utah with hopes of staying far from home until the winter's thaw.

I glanced down at the clock. The red light brightened up the dash. The clock said two so then I checked my wallet for some cash.

We drove into McDonalds, had some breakfast on the run. We'd waited for a whole dang year, now out to have some fun.

A winter blizzard pushed us to the Arizona line. We drove out in the desert, found the place to be just fine.

But now I felt the doggone urge to crouch behind a bush. I still had old time modesty. "Ain't showin' my old tush."

Each cowboy made a dash behind a cactus or a tree. I hope they brought some tissue 'cuz I needed mine for me.

Commodity Insite! Haunted By Markets

By Jerry Welch

It is virtually impossible to find the history of the Big Four: stocks, bonds currency and commodity futures markets to understand why they performed on weekly basis as they did. Yes, there are books about fundamentals, charts, investing psychology and good trading habits for speculators. But the only book that offers a week by week, year by year history of the futures, is my new book, "Haunted By Markets".

My book is comprised of selected weekly column I wrote and were published in a handful of weekly newspapers since the mid-1980's. Haunted By Markets is loaded with statistics and stories about what caused the various markets to do what they did. To my knowledge, there has never been a book quite like this one. There is no other book anywhere, past or present to learn about the history of the futures markets what made prices trip the light fantastic.

To understand the futures markets, the Big Four: stocks, bonds, currencies and commodities, one must know history. Without understanding history and how markets respond to events, investors, speculators and agricultural producers are flying blind. If you do not know the history of markets, you know nothing.

Here are the opening paragraphs from the Introduction of, 'Haunted By Markets.'

"History has always possessed me and I have always been haunted by markets.

"This book is about history. The history of the Big Four: stocks, bonds, currency and commodity futures in the years 1990 to 2015, as I witnessed and wrote about it in my weekly newspaper column, Commodity Insight, or, Commodity Insite. And there is a story behind why there are two different names for my weekly column, but I won't go there now.

"I have been writing a weekly column for the Illinois Agri News in La Salle, Illinois since the early 1980's. Cattle Today is located in Fayette, Alabama and has been publishing my weekly ramblings for more than 20 years. Consensus, National Futures and Financial Weekly, located in Kansas City, have also been publishing my work for longer than I can recall. Each is a weekly publication.

"To my knowledge, no one has written for so long about and had published in a weekly or daily newspaper, the history of the futures market and how the Big Four would dance the week away. Dance they did. And dance they still do."

"I did reach back in time for Haunted By Markets and used a few columns from the 1990's and onward because history is the bridge between the past and the present, in particular where markets are concerned. There are also big gaps that are there on purpose. After all, how big a book would I have if I published each column for the past 30 odd years. As it turned out, Haunted By Markets is 758 pages long!

"Watching the markets dance all these years, there are more lessons to be learned than can be related here. But several lessons to be learned stand out larger than others. For instance, when it comes to forecasting and predictions, "No One Knows For Sure" regardless of the market, the analyst offering the guess, an omen, the cycle of the moon or the Zurich Gnome. The bottom line is clear. "No one knows for sure" when it comes to forecasts and predictions."

"And here are just a few of the various chapters that make up the book. "Dalmatian Break Of 101 Points. When the Tide Rises. President Speaking Did Not Help A Thing. Most Bearish Year Since 1929. Stick A Fork In Deflation. Grains Have Changed To A Bull. Largest One Day Rally In 49 Years. Commodities at New 30 Year High. Another Rogue Trader. Yellin n Sellin n Cryin n Buyin. Soybean Roller Coaster Ride Of 1973. The Pachyderm In The Room. All That Glisters Is Not Gold. Uncomfortably Embarrassed." I could offer the titles of even more chapters but for now, I will leave that for a later date.

I hope you will consider taking a peek at my book that can be found at commodityinsite.com. I do not think you will be disappointed as the book is one-of-a-kind and no other like it. If you are disgruntled by "Haunted By Markets" I will eat a bug. Well, maybe.

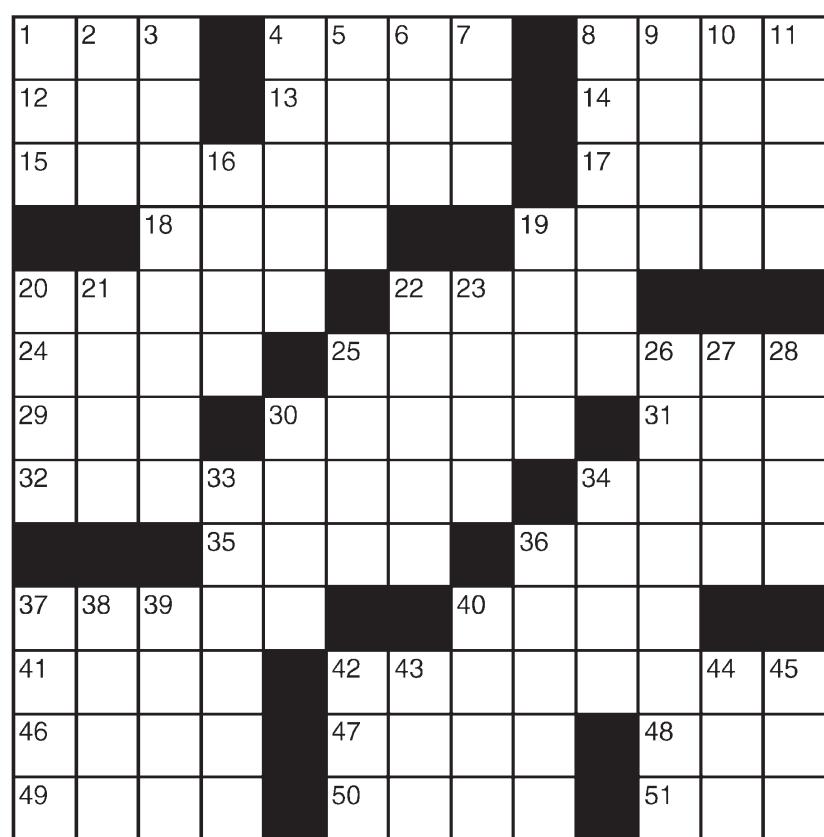

And after reading my book, you too may become haunted by markets.
